Question 2

Identify 3 ways you developed personally and professionally during your teaching experience in three well-developed paragraphs.

Your Answer:

I was not very confident when it came to presenting and teaching a class. Reviewing the materials and developing the weekly presentations allowed me to become more comfortable with knowing I could teach the materials. I was also able to meet with the professor I was teaching with weekly before the class and I was able to clarify with him any questions I had before the class. This was very helpful and appreciated. The professor led the first few weeks and I adapted to his teaching style to keep the classes synchronous throughout the semester.

I learned that I was able to develop and coordinate the presentations for the class. I had little experience of how to develop and grade students. The assignments were easy to grade and the presentations were developed to follow the readings and assignments the students would be working on. I found this to become easier as I worked through the semester.

I believe I have begun to develop my supervision and teaching identity. I feel that I relate to the professor's teaching style. I have integrated the teaching ways of the professor I worked with into my teaching style. This is important to develop your own style of teaching, yet not be too unique. I have grown a lot since my previous supervision internship as my style has changed.

Question 3

Identify 3 goals for continued personal and professional development in three well-developed paragraphs.

Your Answer:

I plan to reach out to other professors to see if I can be a TA for them to get more experience and develop my teaching style. I will also be able to learn the styles of other professors, which in turn will help me develop my style. This will be a valuable tool and will also help me develop my CV for teaching experience.

I plan to work on my counselor educator and supervisor identity. This will come from working with other professors as well. I can pick the brains of the professors I will work with to grow my identity. Developing your counselor educator and supervisor identity is important and will help you develop into a more efficient educator or supervisor, depending on which direction you choose to go.

I plan to become more involved in professional organizations as I work my way up the ladders of several organizations. I am currently involved in 3 different organizations and seek to add a fourth one this year, as a committee chair. I believe that to be an effective leader, you need to work your way through all the different positions of the organization to completely understand the way they run.
