

Self-Evaluation of Teaching

1. What went well in this lesson? Students were very interactive during the section that was set for this. Why? The PowerPoint helped and the visuals and videos added to discussions.
2. What problems did I experience? I taught as my professor had done and ran through several slides without giving time for them to process. Why? I have been watching how he teaches and was copying his style, which is not my style when I should have used my own.
3. Was it “student-centered”? It was student-centered. Should it have been? Yes, it should have as it has allowed them to interact and ask questions throughout the class.
4. What could I have done differently? I could have slowed down between slides and allowed more time for students to interact and take in all the information I was presenting.
5. What did I learn from this experience that will help me in the future? The students are very susceptible to everything I say and share, they are like sponges.
6. Preparation and research: Was I well prepared? I was fairly prepared- What could I have done differently? I could have spent a little more time watching the videos and maybe done a little more practice with sharing during slides.
7. Written plan: Was I organized? Yes. Did the written format work? Somewhat, one thing it does not prepare you for is a ton of questions on a certain area or subject. Is there a better form? I think it was good.
8. Presentation: Were the students involved? Yes, the students were involved. Was I clear in my presentation? Yes, I was clear in my presentation. How was the pacing? I could have given more time in between slides for students to interact more.
9. Assessment: Did my method of assessment measure what I want? Yes, I was asked to focus on paraphrasing and reflecting skills. How did the class do in terms of learning outcomes? I believe I met all the outcomes. What should I change for next time? I will always have some things I need to improve in.
10. What was your overall perspective of the experience? I truly have been enjoying the experience, working with different professors allows me to grow and learn and develop my own professional identity.
